A modern day Haulover Creek as it empties out into the Caribbean Sea. It still serves as a major mode of transportation for fisher folks and those plying the tourism trade by taking tours out to the Cayes. The boats in the foreground are sail boats used by our fishermen and those in the background on the right are the bigger boats used to transport people and freight to the Cayes. On the the left hand (front) is a speed-boat that is driven by an out-board motor and not by sails.

Cassava
ereba bread bammy

Mabuiga! Welcome! to the website cassava-bread. Cassava can spur rural development and raise incomes for producers, processors and traders. It can contribute to the food security status and poverty alleviation of its producing and consuming households. In Belize, and in other Caribbean countries, the demand for ereba or cassava bread has grown, being now consumed by all ethnic groups (see Maps).
